Established in 1999, Cellebrite is the global leader of mobile forensic solutions, providing the most intuitive and technologically advanced tools there are to law enforcement, military, intelligence, corporate security and e-discovery worldwide.

Cellebrite's expertise in the mobile forensic industry has led to the creation of the most advanced extraction, decoding and analytical tools, Cellebrite's UFED Series.

About UFED Touch

The UFED Touch is Cellebrite's new generation mobile forensic solution; purpose designed to extract, decode and analyze data and passwords from the widest range of mobile devices; smartphones such as BlackBerry, Android and iOS, feature and legacy phones, portable GPS devices, handheld tablets and phones manufactured with Chinese chipsets.

The UFED Touch is a standalone device and requires NO computer for extraction. Extracted data includes deleted data, passwords, phonebook content, pictures, videos, SMS messages, calendar, applications, chats, email, call logs, ESN and IMEI information, and much more. Extracted data can be stored onto USB flash drive/external hard drive or directly to a PC.

The UFED Touch is available in two versions – UFED Touch Logical for logical extractions and passwords, and the UFED Touch Ultimate for physical, logical and file system extraction of all data and passwords. It comes with an all-inclusive mobile forensic kit, providing users everything needed for any investigation. The UFED Touch comes in a standard or ruggedized version.

Extracted data can be decoded and analyzed using the UFED reporting and analysis software, varied for logical or physical extractions.

Cellebrite exclusively support most major carriers worldwide including, T-Mobile, Orange, Telstra, Verizon, AT&T and Sprint, to ensure that new phone models are supported prior to their retail launch.
